PROFILE

Final-year Bachelor of Fashion Marketing student at Collarts University with a strong foundation in brand styling, visual merchandising, and creative direction. Experienced in retail, event coordination, and modelling, with a genuine eye for aesthetics and a commercial understanding of how fashion brands connect with their audiences. Currently developing Madeleine Multi-Wear (MMW), an independent fashion brand project, applying skills gained through my degree to build a real brand from concept to identity. Relocating to Sydney or Melbourne in early 2026 to pursue a career in brand marketing and styling.

WHAT DRIVES ME

I'm drawn to fashion that tells a story — brands that build a whole world around a collection, not just a product. Growing up surrounded by mountains and high-end tourism in Queenstown gave me an early appreciation for how environment and aesthetic shape identity. I find inspiration in art direction, interior design, travel, and the way different cultures express themselves through clothing. Music also plays a big part in how I think creatively — it influences mood, pace, and the feeling I want a shoot or campaign to have. These are the things that inform my eye and keep my perspective fresh.
