

Nourish in Motion

Samantha Campbell

PHOMPHS 2025

Nourish in Motion will explore the connection between mobility, growth, whole foods, and nature. As you can't experience nature by sitting in the same spot, you must be apart, not just watching. Mobile means able to move or be moved freely; therefore, I will be analysing and discovering whole foods/nature through a smartphone, experiencing feelings of being active and alive through limitations in depth of light and size, and producing those vibrant pigment food colours for nourishment and growth. This folio moves with the identity of Queenstown's environment, capturing produce, hands, soil, humans, gardens, and light. Through mobile limitations and everyday tools, Nourish in Motion highlights treating nourishment as an active, lived experience.

This first series is growth and environment; images 1-3 open at ground level, beginning with nourishments and gumboots, inviting a connection with humans, and introducing the photoshoot environment before harvesting. The young plant represents the early stages of growth and beginnings, and then you view a deeper movement into the garden and surroundings, as if you're peeking into more nourishment through vines.

Image 1

Image 2

Image 3

Image 4

The second series of images, 4-6, is human and nature, where the narrative shifts as a hand reaches into the garden, revealing nourishment in strawberries, cauliflower, green herbs, and carrots and exposing the limitations and quality of the theme in a still-life motion, with colours identified with earthy, bold tones, and a folio palette. The water image creates a scene of activity and preparation.

Image 5

Image 6

Image 7

Image 8

Image 9

Images 7-9 create the story ending.

Everything comes together, showing a basket of fresh produce and humans gathered from it.

From the warm evening light, these images are taken and show the shift from simple harvesting to established growth. The close-up of the cauliflower adds texture and a sense of realism that the audience may not have seen before.

Finally, the steps back into the environment bring the imagery to the fore, leading to a connection with the land and achieving full environmental capture for the folio.

Folio final 9 Image:

